New Release

"Got You Something"

Out May 15, 2026

A voice-led, groove-driven track built entirely on live instrumentation, "Got You Something" centres unprocessed vocal warmth and character-rich textures. The track moves between intimacy and intensity, capturing the moment where loss and clarity begin to coexist.

Bio Sasha Joy

Sasha Joy is a London-based singer-songwriter working in modern, voice-led soul, defined by a compelling vocal identity, live textures, and emotional clarity. Her music centres expressive, unprocessed vocals within warm, character-rich arrangements that favour groove and space over excess and overproduction.

Her songs move naturally between intimacy and intensity, carried by a vocal delivery that balances vulnerability with control. With a sharp pen and a strong sense of musical architecture, she creates work that reveals more with each listen.

Her recent releases have received consistent editorial support, with music press describing her work as a “masterpiece” and a “brilliant effusion” (EARMILK). Sasha Joy is earning recognition as a distinct artist with a sound entirely her own.
